

Women on Course

Calling Your Own Shots: Lessons for Golf and Life

A premier one-day learning experience for women executives

Co-hosted by William Blair and Underwriters Laboratories and in conjunction with LPGA golf professional Jamie Fischer, this special event is an opportunity for women to utilize the venue of golf—where business is often conducted—to discuss best practices in executive leadership strategies while building relationships. The schedule and scope of the day is designed for women across ALL levels of previous golf experience. Women on Course provides an engaging format for women to enjoy the day and the game.

Benefits to your company's women executives:

- Dynamic interactive presentations
- Networking with other women executives from a variety of fields
- Learn how to use golf as a tool in developing and advancing business
- Hands-on professional and personal development

Designed for both experienced golfers and beginners alike:

- Golf instruction from award-winning LPGA instructors
OR
- On-course time to enjoy a championship course with other executives and clients
